

FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Chatham, MA

The First Congregational Church of Chatham is a Christian church serving the Barnstable County congregation. The church was organized in 1720 and serves as the iconic gateway to town. It has undergone several renovations, including a steeple stabilization and interior restoration project. The current project involves extensive renovations to portions of an 1830's building, construction of an addition for new administrative spaces, a robing room and a new location for the church pipe organ. New mechanical/HVAC systems, plumbing and electrical upgrades will be added along with a new four stop elevator to provide handicap accessibility throughout the building.

SERVICES

- Historic building structural conditions assessment report
- Feasibility study for building addition and improvements
- Civil engineering for new parking lot layout and site ADA accessibility improvements

